

Pre-Clinical Phase

Pre-Clinical Phase: Testing done in a laboratory.

Cancer research begins in the laboratory where scientists try to understand cancer and treatment at a basic level. If laboratory testing shows that a new treatment or intervention may be helpful to people with cancer, it will proceed to Phase 1 testing.